Sea power in the machine age

Type de contenu : Texte

Type de médiation : sans médiation

Type de support : Volume

Titre(s) : Sea power in the machine age / by Bernard Brodie

Auteur(s) : Brodie, Bernard (1910-1978)

Publication : New York (N.Y.) : Greenwood press, 1969

Description matérielle : 1 vol. (VIII-462 p.) ; 23 cm

ISBN : 0-8371-1445-4
978-0-8371-1445-3

Classification décimale Dewey : 359.4

Note sur les bibliographies et les index : Notes bibliogr. Index

Note sur le contenu : Sea Power and the New Technology Pt. I. The Steam Warship Steam Comes to the Battle Fleet Anglo-French Rivalry over Steam The Invasion Panics The Crimean War and the Steam Warship War at Sea Under Steam: Tactics and Strategy War at Sea Under Steam: Strategic Geography and the Fuel Problem Pt. II. The Iron-Hulled Warship Timber Gives Way to Iron The New Fabric of Sea Power Pt. III. Armor Versus Great Ordnance The Vulnerable Armorclad Toward a New Ordnance The Race Between Protection and Penetration War at Sea with Armored Ships and Great Ordnance Pt. IV. The Torpedo, the Mine, and the Submarine Naval War Enters a New Dimension The Coming of the Modern Submarine The Undersea Arm in the World War Unlearned Lessons and the Second Great U-Boat War The Submarine Arm and the War of Squadrons Pt. V. Aircraft in Naval War Naval Aviation in the World War and Post-War Periods Naval Aviation in Modern War Naval Invention and National

Note de thèses et écrits académiques : Texte remanié de Doctoral thesis War studies University of Chicago (Ill.) 1940

Sujet - Nom commun : Puissance maritime
Art et science navals
Marines de guerre