

Western mainstream media and the Ukraine Crisis

Type de contenu : Texte

Type de médiation : sans médiation

Type de support : Volume

Titre(s) : Western mainstream media and the Ukraine Crisis : a study in conflict propaganda / Oliver Boyd-Barrett

A pour autre édition sur un support différent : Western mainstream media and the Ukraine Crisis a study in conflict propaganda Oliver Boyd-Barrett 2019 London Routledge Media, war and security 978-1-315-55968-1

Auteur(s) : Boyd-Barrett, Oliver

Publication : London New York (N.Y.) : Routledge, 2017

Description matérielle : 1 vol. (209 pages) ; 24 cm

Collection : Media, war and security

ISBN : 978-1-138-67719-7
1-138-67719-1
978-1-138-57989-7

EAN : 9781138677197 rel.
9781138579897 br.

Appartient à la collection : Media, war and security Andrew Hoskins,... and Oliver Boyd-Barrett,..., series editors London Routledge 2010

Classification décimale Dewey : 947.708 6

Note sur les bibliographies et les index : Bibliographie pages [169]-199. Index

Note sur le contenu : Introduction Immediate causes of the 2014 crisis Liberal freedom fighters or fascist militia? Absent context (1) struggle for Eurasia Absent context (2) preparing the neoliberal turn in Ukraine's economy Crimea, Odessa and Eastern Ukraine (Donbass) Representation, misrepresentation and the demonizing of Vladimir Putin The downing of MH17 The Russians are (maybe/probably not) coming! Articulating the principles of Western conflict propaganda Conclusion Postscript

Résumé ou extrait : La p. [1] indique : "This book explores contemporary propaganda and mainstream

Western news media, with reference to the Ukraine crisis. It examines western media narratives of the immediate causes of the crisis, the respective roles of those who participated in or otherwise supported the demonstrations of 2013-2014 - including US-backed NGOs and rightist militia - and the legitimacy, or otherwise, of the destabilization of the democratically elected Yanukovich government. It considers how the crisis was contextualized with reference to broader themes of competition for power over Eurasia and the Washington Consensus. It assesses the role of Russia and of ethnic Russian Ukrainians in Crimea, Odessa and the Donbass and asks whether western mainstream media went out of their way to demonize Vladimir Putin. The book deconstructs prevailing western narratives as to the reasons for the shooting down of Malaysian Airways flight MH17 in July 2014, and counters western media concentration on the issue of culpability for the shooting down with an alternative narrative of culpability for failure to close air space to civilian airliners. From analysis of these discourses the book identifies principles of post-2001 western conflict propaganda as these appeared to play out in Ukraine. This book will be of much interest to students of propaganda, media and communication studies, Russian and Eastern European politics, security studies and IR."

Sujet - Nom commun : Guerre du Donbass (Ukraine ; 2014-2022) -- Dans les médias

Aéronautique -- Accidents -- Ukraine

Médias et politique -- Ukraine

Guerre de l'information -- Ukraine

Communication en politique -- Ukraine

Médias et politique -- Russie

Communication en politique -- Russie

Propagande -- 1990-2020

Médias et politique -- 1990-2020

Communication en politique -- 1990-2020