

Managing a changing relationship

Type de contenu : Texte

Type de médiation : sans médiation

Titre(s) : Managing a changing relationship : China's Japan policy in the 1990s / Robert S. Ross

Auteur(s) : Ross, Robert S. (1954-....)

Autre(s) auteur(s) : U.S. Army War College conference on Strategy 7th 1996 Carlisle Barracks (Pa.)

Autre(s) responsabilité(s) : Army War College U.S. - Organisateur de réunion

Editeur, producteur : [Carlisle Barracks (Pa.)] : Strategic studies institute, U.S. Army War College, 1996

Description matérielle : 1 vol. (IV-29 p.) ; 23 cm

Autre variante du titre : [China's Japan policy in the 1990s.]

Classification décimale Dewey : 327.510 52

Note(s) : "Textes issus de communications, présentés lors de la 7ème conférence annuelle stratégique, organisée par "the U.S. Army War College", tenue du 23 au 25 avril 1996, intitulée : "China into the 21st century : strategic partner and ...or peer competitor"
"30 septembre 1996"

Note sur les bibliographies et les index : Notes bibliogr.

Résumé ou extrait : Extrait de l'avant-propos : "In April 1996, the Army War College's Strategic Studies Institute held its Seventh Annual Strategy Conference. This year's theme was, "China into the 21st Century: Strategic Partner and ... or Peer Competitor." The author of the following monograph, Dr. Robert S. Ross, of Harvard University's Fairbank Center for East Asian Research, argues that Japan's relationship with China is a key element in the evolving East Asian security structure. From Beijing's perspective, China's Japan policy rivals its relationship with the United States in relative strategic importance. Japan's economic strength and its potential military power make it a major factor in Chinese security calculations. Many of the same factors that affect Sino-American relations and Sino-Russian relations are integral to the relationship between Beijing and Tokyo. Among these are Chinese treatment of dissidents, the Taiwan issue, economic investment, and Japanese military policy and strategy. Today Japanese and Chinese interests compete in many areas, requiring tolerance, patience and diplomatic sophistication to keep competition from evolving into conflict. In the future, these challenges are likely to grow in complexity."

Sujet - Nom commun : Relations extérieures -- Chine -- Japon

Relations extérieures -- Japon -- Chine
Relations extérieures -- Chine -- États-Unis
Relations extérieures -- États-Unis -- Chine
Rôle stratégique -- Chine

Forme, genre ou caractéristiques physiques : Actes de congrès