Résumé ou extrait : Something horrid happened in the city of Douma in Syria on 7 April 2018. It was alleged to be an attack with banned chemical weapons, said to have killed more than forty terrified civilians. The US, UK and France responded with punitive missiles and airstrikes. But what did actually happen ? And how does this relate to the other alleged chemical attacks by the Syrian regime ? Inspector A takes us on a journey through his investigations and travels in Syria during the conflict, and the political intrigue that has caused bitter divisions among Member States at the UN and the OPCW, the world's chemical weapons watchdog.
