

The role of airpower in the Iran-Iraq War

Type de contenu : Texte

Type de médiation : sans médiation

Type de support : Volume

Titre(s) : The role of airpower in the Iran-Iraq War / by Ronald E. Bergquist,...

Auteur(s) : Bergquist, Ronald E. (19..-....)

Publication : Maxwell Air Force Base (Ala.) : Air University press Washington : Supt. of Docs., US G.P.O., 1988

Description matérielle : 1 vol. (X-94 p.) : cartes ; 23 cm

Classification décimale Dewey : 955.054 2

Note(s) : "Décembre 1988"

Cartes sur les parties liminaires

Note sur la description bibliographique : Consultable à l'adresse

Note sur les bibliographies et les index : Bibliogr. p. 87-94. Notes bibliogr. Glossaire

Note sur le contenu : 1. The Arab air warfare experience. The first Arab-Israeli War 1947-49 The Suez War 29 October-7 November 1956 The Six-Day War 1967 The October War 1973 Wrap-up the Arab Wars. 2. Backgrounds of the IQAF and IIAF. The Iraqi Air Force The Iranian Air Force. 3. Reasons for war. The reasons. 4. The war the initial stages. 5. The air war. Deterrence the primary role for air forces Performance the IQAF and IIAF in strategic strikes The vital importance of attrition Performance the IQAF and IIAF in strategic defense Doctrinal approaches Offensive counterair operations Support for ground forces close air support/interdiction Command and control different approaches. 6. Conclusions. The role of airpower Airpower approaches Cultural factors impacting military operations

Résumé ou extrait : "In this book, Major Bergquist examines the air war between Iran and Iraq. Rather than simply describing what happened in the war, it attempts to discern why Iran and Iraq used their airpower as they did. It shows how the combatants value airpower, what aspects of airpower appear most important to Iranian and Iraqi national leaders, and how their values and needs led them to use airpower in ways quite apart from Western professional expectations. The results highlight considerations that affect the use of airpower by third world nations." (éd.)

Sujet - Nom commun : Guerre Irak-Iran (1980-1988) -- Opérations aériennes