

The Oxford encyclopedia of maritime history. 2, Factory ship - Navies, great powers : Japan

Type de contenu : Texte

Type de médiation : sans médiation

Titre(s) : The Oxford encyclopedia of maritime history. 2, Factory ship - Navies, great powers : Japan
[Texte imprimé] . Factory ship - Navies, great powers : Japan, 2
John B. Hattendorf editor in chief

Ensemble : 2

The Oxford encyclopedia of maritime history

Autre(s) responsabilité(s) : Hattendorf, John B. (1941-....) (Éditeur scientifique)

Editeur, producteur : Oxford : Oxford university press, cop. 2007

Description matérielle : 722 p.
: ill. ; 29 cm

ISBN : 0-19-513075-8
978-0-19-513075-1

Classification décimale Dewey : 623.803 23

Note(s) : Références bibliogr. pour chaque article

Note sur le contenu : Vol. 1, Actium, battle of - ex voto ; Vol. 2, Factory ship - navies, great powers : Japan ; Vol. 3, Navies, great powers : Portugal - shipyards ; Vol. 4, Siebe, Augustus - Zheng He, topical outline of entries directory of contributors, Index

Résumé ou extrait : The Encyclopedia covers the entire history of seafaring, from ancient Egyptian shipbuilders to the nuclear submarines and supertankers of today. Over nine hundred articles written by leading historians examine all aspects of maritime history, including naval history, shipbuilding, biographies of major figures, navigation and scientific instrumentation, maritime art and literature, commerce and economics, and international law. Placing maritime affairs in their larger historical context, the Encyclopedia shows how seafaring has both reflected and influenced the major economic, cultural, military, and political developments in world history

Sujet(s) : Art et science navale
Encyclopédies et dictionnaires anglais
Histoire
Histoire navale

Navigation

Sujet - Nom commun : Histoire navale

Forme, genre ou caractéristiques physiques : Encyclopédies