

Rwanda after genocide

Type de contenu : Texte

Type de médiation : sans médiation

Type de support : Volume

Titre(s) : Rwanda after genocide : gender, identity and post-traumatic growth / Caroline Williamson Sinalo

Auteur(s) : Sinalo, Caroline Williamson

Publication : Cambridge [etc.] : Cambridge University press, 2018

Description matérielle : 1 vol. (XVI-227 p.) : ill. ; 24 cm

ISBN : 978-1-108-42613-8

1-108-42613-1

978-1-108-44459-0

Classification décimale Dewey : 967.571 043

Note sur les bibliographies et les index : Bibliogr. p. 201-218. Index

Résumé ou extrait : Présentation de l'éditeur : "Before the arrival of Europeans, conflict rarely took place between the Tutsi and Hutu in Rwanda. Wars generally pitted the Banyarwanda as a group against outsiders and, with the same language, religion and cultural practices, the terms Hutu and Tutsi did not refer to distinct ethnic groups, as such, but to political status and occupation. The racialisation of these groups came with the arrival of the German and later Belgian colonists who believed the Tutsi to be racially superior to the Hutu. Such divisions were further reinforced by the colonial policy of introducing identity cards in the 1930s which explicitly stated the individual's ethnic group. Alongside these reforms, the Belgians established Tutsi supremacy by reserving educational opportunities for Tutsi and replacing all Hutu in power with pro-European Tutsi chiefs."

Sujet - Nom commun : Survivants du génocide des Tutsi -- Rwanda
Génocide -- Aspect social -- Rwanda

Sujet - Nom géographique : Rwanda -- 1994 (Guerre civile) -- Atrocités