Résumé ou extrait : "This accessible study explores the scope of Hamas's intelligence activity against Israel from 1987 to the present. Netanel Flamer uses Arabic, Hebrew and English sources to analyse Hamas's methods for gathering information, its use of information for operational needs and strategic analysis, and its counterintelligence activity."

"Since its founding in 1987, the political and ideological dimensions of the terror organisation Hamas have been well discussed by scholars. In contrast, this innovative study takes a new approach by exploring the entire scope of Hamas's intelligence activity against its state adversary, Israel. The Hamas Intelligence War against Israel explores how Hamas's activity has gradually become more sophisticated as its institutions have become more established and the nature of the conflict has changed. As the first full-length study to analyze the intelligence efforts of a violent non-state actor, this book sheds new light on the activities and operations of Hamas, and opens new avenues for intelligence research in the wider field."
