Résumé ou extrait : "Disconnects within the peacebuilding field have increasingly become obstacles to its further evolution and improvement. Without a serious shift in direction toward more integrated, interconnected, and intersectional understanding and approaches, peacebuilding threatens to become just another Western-driven industry in which powerful decision-makers, politicized funding, and large international bureaucracies sustain themselves. Reconnecting the field with its roots of community based activism, organizing, and courageous leadership is urgently needed, and it's a necessary step in improving our collective efforts to build a more peaceful, just, and sustainable world. Drawing on the voices and experiences of community-based peace leaders, Choosing Peace: Agency and Action in the Midst of War envisions a new way of working together as a truly local and global peacebuilding community -- one in which undoing the roots of violence and injustice is not something that takes place "in the field" but in the streets of our own neighborhoods and in solidarity with others around the world."
