

Donald J. Trump and China

Type de contenu : Texte

Type de médiation : sans médiation

Type de support : Volume

Titre(s) : Donald J. Trump and China / John Franklin Copper

Auteur(s) : Copper, John Franklin (1940-....)

Publication : Lanham (Md.) [etc.] : Hamilton books

Date de copyright : C 2019

Description matérielle : 1 vol. (XI-151 p.) ; 23 cm

ISBN : 978-0-7618-7118-7
0-7618-7118-7

EAN : 9780761871187 br.

Classification décimale Dewey : 327.730 51

Note(s) : Index

Note sur le contenu : Chapter One: President Donald Trump's Upbringing, Thoughts, and His Understanding of China; Chapter Two: President Obama's China Policy Legacy; Chapter Three: Has President Obama Driven (bird caged) President-elect Trump into a Conflict with China ?; Chapter Four: Why China Likes Donald Trump; Chapter Five: President Trump's Decision to Honor the One-China Policy; Chapter Six: The Challenge of China's Role as the World's Builder; Chapter Seven: The First Trump-Xi Meeting; Chapter Eight: Has President Trump's Worldview Become More Discernible ? ; Chapter Nine: Does the United States Expect Too Much of China in Dealing with North Korea ? Chapter Ten: Opponents and Supporters of China's One Belt One Road Project; Chapter Eleven: President Trump Dismisses Steve Bannon; Chapter Twelve: The U.S. Liberal Media's Treatment of President Trump's Asia Trip Versus Asian Reporting; Chapter Thirteen: Explaining the Recent Tension in United States-China Relations; Chapter Fourteen: The U.S. Trade Deficit with China; Chapter Fifteen: The Worsening U.S. Trade Deficit with China; Chapter Sixteen: The Top Two Targets of Western Liberal Media Bias ; Chapter Seventeen: Avoiding a United States-China Trade WarChapter Eighteen: Will the Western Media Prod America and China into a War ?; Chapter Nineteen: Understanding the United States-China Impasse on North Korea; Chapter Twenty: Will President Trump Ignite a War with China?; Chapter Twenty-one: China's Rise as an Innovative Country; Chapter Twenty-two: Why the United States is Losing (has lost ?) the Number One World Power Ranking to China; Chapter Twenty-three: Will China

Meddle in America's Mid-term Election? ; Chapter Twenty-four: Does President Donald Trump Dislike China and Chinese? On the Contrary !Chapter Twenty-five: Dealing with the U.S. Trade Deficit with China; Chapter Twenty-six: China Robs U.S. Intellectual Property and Technology; Chapter Twenty-seven: America and China: long term friends or enemies ?

Résumé ou extrait : In Donald J. Trump and China John F. Copper assesses the relationship between two paramount world powers-the United States and China. Copper examines how Donald Trump views China's importance as a rising world power and as a country that Trump could forge a balanced trade policy alongside

Sujet - Nom de personne : Trump, Donald (1946-....) -- Et la Chine

Sujet - Nom commun : Développement économique -- Chine

Relations extérieures -- États-Unis -- Chine

Relations extérieures -- Chine -- États-Unis

Politique et gouvernement -- États-Unis -- 2017-....

Rôle stratégique -- Chine

Sujet - Nom géographique : Chine -- Opinion publique -- Amérique

États-Unis -- Opinion publique -- Chine