Résumé ou extrait : How are borders built in the modern world ? What does Brexit mean for Ireland's border ? And what would happen if Elon Musk declared himself president of the Moon ? In Border Wars, Professor Klaus Dodds takes us on a journey into the geopolitical conflict of tomorrow in an eye-opening tour of the world's best-known, most dangerous and most unexpected border conflicts from the Gaza Strip to the space race. Along the way, we'll discover just what border truly mean in the modern world: how are they built; what do they mean for citizens and governments; how do they help understand our political past and, most importantly, our diplomatic future ?
