

The owl of Minerva flies at twilight

Type de contenu : Texte

Type de médiation : sans médiation

Titre(s) : The owl of Minerva flies at twilight : doctrinal change and continuity and the revolution in military affairs / David Jablonsky,...

Auteur(s) : Jablonsky, David

Autre(s) auteur(s) : Army War College U.S. Strategic Studies Institute

Editeur, producteur : Carlisle Barracks (Pa.) : Strategic studies institute, U.S. Army War College, 1994

Description matérielle : 1 vol. (V-83 p.) : ill. ; 23 cm

Collection : Professional readings in military strategy no 10

Appartient à la collection : Professional readings in military strategy no 10

Classification décimale Dewey : 355.033 073

Note(s) : "Mai 1994"

Texte présenté lors de la 5^{ème} conférence annuelle sur la stratégie, tenue en avril 1994, à Carlisle Barracks, en Pennsylvanie, intitulée 'The Revolution in Military Affairs: Defining an Army for the 21st Century'

Note sur les bibliographies et les index : Notes bibliogr.

Résumé ou extrait : Présentation de l'éditeur : "Revolutions in military affairs have never been strictly military phenomena. Social and political transformations in the past have also been major and often catalytic ingredients of such revolutions. The current revolution is no exception, whether it involves the relationship of communication-information breakthroughs to the interaction of the elements of Clausewitz's remarkable trinity, or the civil- military aspects concerning the use of military force in the post-cold war era. In all this, the United States military, and particularly the United States Army, is doctrinally ready to move into the revolution underway in military affairs. On the one hand, there is the emphasis on versatility in terms of dealing with the changes that accompany any such revolution. On the other, there is the continuity of the doctrinal framework, itself a product of an earlier RMA, which will serve, this study convincingly concludes, to ease many of the sociopolitical problems that may emerge as the revolution in military affairs continues."

Sujet - Nom commun : Doctrines militaires -- États-Unis
Art et science militaires -- Innovations technologiques

Planification militaire -- États-Unis
Politique militaire -- États-Unis