

Learning to fight

Type de contenu : Texte

Type de médiation : sans médiation

Type de support : Volume

Titre(s) : Learning to fight : military innovation and change in the British army, 1914-1918 / Aimée Fox,...

Auteur(s) : Fox-Godden, Aimée

Publication : Cambridge (GB) [etc.] : Cambridge University press, 2018

Description matérielle : 1 vol. (XI-278 p.) : graph. ; 24 cm

Collection : Cambridge military histories

ISBN : 978-1-107-19079-5

EAN : 9781107190795

Appartient à la collection : Cambridge military histories 1754-758X

Classification décimale Dewey : 940.412 41

Note sur la description bibliographique : Information sur la thèse trouvée à l'adresse

Note sur les bibliographies et les index : Bibliogr. p. 251-271. Index

Note de thèses et écrits académiques : Texte remanié de Doctoral thesis Histoire University of Birmingham 2015

Résumé ou extrait : La jaquette indique : "Learning, innovation and adaptation are not concepts that we necessarily associate with the British army of the First World War. Yet the need to learn from mistakes, to exploit new opportunities and to adapt to complex situations are enduring and timeless. This revealing work is the first institutional examination of the army's process for learning during the First World War. Drawing on organisational learning and management theories, Aimee Fox critiques existing approaches to military learning in wartime. Focused around a series of case studies, the book ranges across multiple operational theatres and positions the army within a broader context in terms of its relationships with allies and civilians to reveal that learning was more complex and thoroughgoing than initially thought. It grapples with the army's failings and shortcomings, explores its successes and acknowledges the inherent difficulties of learning in a desperate and lethally competitive environment."

Sujet - Collectivité : Grande-Bretagne Army. British Expeditionary Force. -- 1914-1918 (Guerre mondiale)

Sujet - Nom commun : Art et science militaires -- Grande-Bretagne -- 1900-1945